Introduction

This publication provides Australia-wide results from the 1986 Census of Population and Housing.

2. The detailed data are presented in a seven page summary, comprising 46 tables, on pages 7 to 13.

3. Summary results in this form, on magnetic tape, compact disk (CD-ROM), and microfiche are available for each of the 29,632 collection districts in Australia. Some printed summaries at this level of detail are also available for aggregated geographic areas including legal local government areas in statistical divisions containing major urban centres, capital city statistical divisions, statistical districts, and States and Territories.

4. Printed census publications contain broad summaries only, and represent a very small amount of the total census data released. More detailed cross-tabulations for the larger geographic levels (e.g. State or statistical regions), and somewhat less detailed tabulations for small areas (e.g. collection districts or statistical local areas), are available on microfiche and magnetic tape. For further information see Census 86 — Data Release Plans (2173.0).

Scope and coverage

The 1986 Census of Population and Housing aimed 5. at counting every person who spent census night, 30 June 1986, in Australia, including persons on vessels in or between Australian ports, or on board long-distance trains, buses or aircraft. All private dwellings were also counted, whether occupied or unoccupied. Occupied non-private dwellings, such as hospitals, prisons, hotels, etc. were also included. People were counted where they were on census night, which may not have been where they usually lived. This is the basis for the counts in this publication. Place of usual residence was asked of each person, and answers, where they differed from enumeration address, were coded to statistical local area level. Census counts based on place of usual residence are available in other output products. Visitors to Australia were enumerated regardless of how long ago they had arrived or how long they planned to stay. They are included in the counts based on place of enumeration but not in those counts based on usual residence. Australian residents out of the country on census night were excluded from the count.

6. Diplomatic personnel and their families are out of the scope of the census, as are diplomatic residences.

Definitions

Census Count — Place of Enumeration(C)

7. Persons were counted where they were actually located on census night. Overseas visitors are included and Australians overseas are excluded. No adjustment is made for census underenumeration.

Census Count — Place of Usual Residence(U)

8. Persons were also counted according to their stated place of usual residence. Overseas visitors and Australians overseas are excluded, and no adjustment is made for census underenumeration. Statistics on a place of usual residence basis are not included in this publication.

Dwelling

9. For the 1986 Census, dwellings are classified into four basic groups: occupied private dwellings; occupied caravans etc. in caravan parks; unoccupied private dwellings; and non-private dwellings.

(a) An occupied private dwelling is defined as the premises occupied by a household (see below) on census night (except households occupying caravans etc. in caravan parks — see (b)). A private dwelling is normally a house, flat, part of a house or even a room, but can also be a house above shops or offices, a boat, a tent, houseboat, or caravan if standing on its own block of land and not occupied by members of the same household resident in an adjacent dwelling.

It is important to remember that the census definition of a private dwelling means that the total number of dwellings may be more than the total number of known structures in any given area (see 'household' below).

- (b) For the 1986 Census, an occupied caravan etc. in a caravan park is treated as a separate household. This category also includes occupied boats in marinas. In previous censuses, caravans etc. in caravan parks were considered to be parts of a non-private dwelling (the caravan park) which meant that no family relationship data were collected for them. This change in classification will affect some comparisons made between censuses, and care should be taken when comparing family and non-private dwelling data with previous censuses.
- (c) An unoccupied private dwelling is a structure built specifically for private living purposes and capable of being lived in, but unoccupied at the time of the census. Vacant houses, holiday homes, huts, cabins (other than seasonal workers' quarters) and houseboats are counted as unoccupied dwellings; but vacant tents, garages and caravans if not on a separate block (and if not normally occupied) are not. Only private dwellings can be classified as unoccupied (i.e. unoccupied caravans etc. in caravan parks, and unoccupied non-private dwellings are not counted). Unoccupied dwellings include: dwellings which are vacant because they have been newly completed; dwellings which are vacant for demolition or repair; dwellings to let; and dwellings where all members of the household were absent on census night.

(d) Non-private dwellings (NPDs) are dwellings with accommodation not in the dwelling categories listed above, and are classified according to their function. These dwellings include schools, hotels, motels, guest houses, boarding houses, gaols, religious and charitable institutions, hospitals, nursing homes, defence establishments and other communal dwellings. Usually, occupants of such dwellings use communal facilities (such as hotel dining-rooms or mess halls) attached to the particular establishment. Selfcontained units provided by commercial enterprises such as hotels, motels, homes for the elderly, or guest houses are treated as part of a non-private dwelling, not as separate dwellings. Campers out and persons classed as migratory on census night were also included in the NPD count.

Household

10. For census purposes, a household is either a person living alone, or a group of people living together as a single domestic unit with common eating arrangements. It is possible for more than one household to live in one house or structure. For example, a lodger who lives with a family and provides all his own food is not a member of the family's household but constitutes a separate household and, therefore, completes a separate household form. The premises occupied by households are classified as either occupied private dwellings or as caravans etc. in a caravan park.

Campers out

11. Persons who spent census night in the open in cars, caravans or trucks pulled up at the side of the road for that night only, or persons in other temporary camps or accommodation erected for that night only, are classified as campers out. Such persons are included in the population of the statistical local areas in which they were enumerated.

Data quality

12. Statistical collections such as the census are subject to a number of sources of error. While some errors (such as deliberate misreporting) mostly defy detection and correction procedures, the overall amount of error of this type in census results is considered to be insignificant. Information on data quality will be released from late 1987.

- 13. Main sources of error in the census are:
 - (a) Underenumeration. Despite efforts to obtain full coverage of persons and dwellings (other than those associated with overseas diplomatic missions), some undercounting still occurs. A measure of the extent of underenumeration is obtained from a small survey of households undertaken very shortly after the census. Undercounting of persons in the 1986 Census has been estimated to be 1.8 per cent for Australia as a whole.

- (b) Partial response. In those instances where the householder omitted to provide a response to a question, a 'not stated' code was allocated; with the exception of non-response to age, sex and marital status, and statistical local area of usual residence. These variables were imputed using other information on the census form, and specially constructed random tables.
- (c) Respondent error. Computer editing procedures are used to detect obvious errors made by individuals in completing the form (e.g. a six year old male who was married). Such procedures cannot detect all respondent errors and some remain in final output.
- (d) Processing error. Errors created during the processing of the census are kept at an acceptable level by means of a quality control system, which involves sample checking at different stages of the coding and keying operations, and taking corrective action where necessary.

Comparability with other ABS data sources

14. Some data collected in the census are also obtained by other statistical collections undertaken by the ABS. Of particular relevance are results obtained from the monthly labour force surveys which collect information from a sample of households on characteristics of the labour force and other household and person characteristics. Comparisons of figures obtained from the various sources indicate that the results can differ. Users wishing to make such comparisons are cautioned to take note of differences in collection procedures, question wording, processing methodology (e.g. methods of editing and imputation), non-response levels, and conceptual differences. Comparisons with data obtained from sample surveys should also take into account differences in the population bases for the estimates, and sampling error.

SUMMARY OF FINDINGS

Population growth

The 1986 Census of Population and Housing counted 15,602,156 persons in Australia on census night, 30 June 1986. This represented an increase of 7.0 per cent since the 1981 Census. During the past decade, the average rate of growth in Australia's population has been almost 1.5 per cent per annum.

The census count of the population must be distinguished from the estimated resident population, which at 30 June 1986 had reached 16 million and was over 416,000 greater than the number counted in the census. The estimated resident population incorporates upward adjustments to allow for census underenumeration and for persons usually resident in Australia but temporarily overseas, and a downward adjustment to exclude persons who are temporary visitors to Australia. This publication provides census results only — i.e., the figures have not been adjusted to a 'usual residence' basis or for underenumeration.

Marital status (see also Table C02)

The proportion of persons married has declined considerably over the past decade, falling from 63.3 per cent of the population aged 15 years and over in 1976 to 57.8 per cent in 1986. There were substantial increases during the same period in the proportions of never married and divorced persons.

Divorced	2.2	3.7	4.7
Widowed	6.9	6.9	6.5
Total	100.0	100.0	100.0

Age composition (see also Table C03)

The median age of the population increased from 29.7 years in 1981 to 31.0 years in 1986. The increase of 1.3 years in the median age during the 1981-86 intercensal period followed a similar increase during the 1976-81 intercensal period.

The number of children (persons aged 0-14 years) has declined somewhat in recent years, whilst the number of elderly people has been increasing steeply. Between 1976 and 1986 the number of people aged 75 years and over increased by 44 per cent. Further details are shown in Table 2.

75 and over	625.7	+22.6	+44.1
Total	15,602.2	+7.0	+15.2

Usual residence (see also Table C04)

At the 1986 Census, 95.4 per cent of the persons counted were at their usual residence. Of the persons so enumerated, 80.2 per cent were living at the same address as they had been one year earlier, and 51.2 per cent were living at the same address as they had been five years earlier.

Religion (see also Table C05)

Answers to the optional question on religion reveal a continuing increase in the proportion of persons answering 'no religion' — from 8.3 per cent in 1976 to 10.8 per cent in 1981 and 12.7 per cent in 1986.

Among those reporting a religious affiliation, the number of Catholics has increased by 16.7 per cent since 1976 whilst the number of Anglicans has decreased slightly over the same period. Catholics outnumbered Anglicans for the first time at the 1986 Census.

Aboriginals and Torres Strait Islanders (see also Tables C06,C07)

The 1986 Census count revealed 206,104 persons of aboriginal origin and 21,541 persons of Torres Strait Islander (TSI) origin. The combined figure was 42.4 per cent greater than the 1981 count. This is a much larger increase than could be accounted for by the excess of births over deaths. Improved census procedures and a stronger inclination to identify as an Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander are thought to have contributed. These and other possible reasons for the large increase are to be discussed in a census evaluation paper due for release in early 1988.

A notable feature of the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander population is the high proportion of young people. As Table 3 indicates, more than half of the Aboriginal and Torres Strait islander population is aged under 20 years, compared with less than one-third of the total population.

The overseas born (see also Tables C08,C09,C12)

At the 1986 Census, the overseas born represented 20.8 per cent of the total population - virtually the same proportion as at the 1981 Census.

Of those counted in the 1986 Census who were born overseas, by far the largest group was born in the United Kingdom and Ireland (34.7 per cent). The largest groups among the recent immigrants — i.e., the overseas born resident in Australia for less than 5 years — were from South East Asia (21.4 per cent), United Kingdom and Ireland (19.3 per cent) and other countries in the Oceania region (17.4 per cent).

Among the Australian-born population, some 25 per cent had either one or both parents born overseas. Over 40 per cent of the population counted at the 1986 Census were either born overseas or had one or both parents born overseas.

Proficiency in English (see also Table C10)

At the 1986 Census there were 1,380,430 persons aged 5 years and over who were born in non-English speaking countries and who spoke a language other than English at home. Some 74.8 per cent of these persons spoke English well or very well, 21.3 per cent could not speak English well and 4.0 per cent could not speak English at all.

Taken together the last two groups — i.e., those who could not speak English well and those who could not speak English at all — represented 2.6 per cent of the census count of those aged 15-64 years and 4.1 per cent of those aged 65 years and over.

Language spoken at home (see also Table C11)

One in every seven persons in Australia aged 5 years and over speaks a language other than English at home. Table 4 shows the main languages spoken by those who spoke a language other than English at home.

Labour force status of couples (see also Table C14)

At the 1986 Census, the number of two-worker couples exceeded the number of one-worker couples by a large margin. Details are shown in Table 5.

TABLE 5 : EMPLOYMENT STATUS OF COUPLES (a)

Employment status	Per cent of total

(a) Only couples where spouse present on census night included. Excludes persons whose labour force status was not stated.

Income of families (see also Table C15)

The median family income reported at the 1986 Census was $24,680, but there were large differences in the median income of families of different types. Single parent families with one dependent child had a median income of $7,780, whereas families consisting of a couple and one dependent child had a median income of $24,880.

Attendance at educational institutions (see also Table C20)

Due to a problem with processing procedures, the published results obtained from the census question asking about current attendance at an educational institution should be taken as preliminary. A special publication on this topic will be released during 1988.

The preliminary figures indicate that almost 3.7 million persons, or 23.5 per cent of the total population, were attending an educational institution. Some 70 per cent of all students were reported as being at infant, primary or secondary school, whilst nearly 19.0 per cent were reported to be attending a tertiary institution.

Of students at infant or primary schools, 24.2 per cent attended non-government schools. At the secondary level, 30.4 per cent of students attended non-government schools.

Occupations (see also Tables C26,C31 and C34)

The two largest occupational groups amongst the 6.5 million employed persons counted in the census were 'Clerks' and 'Tradespersons' with 17.1 per cent and 11.3 per cent of the employed labour force respectively. These results (see Table 6 below) are based on the newly developed Australian Standard Classification of Occupations first used for the 1986 Census.

Table 6 also reveals that males dominate the 'Tradespersons' occupation with over nine males for every female. Males also dominate the 'Management and Administration' and 'Plant and Machine Operators' occupations. Females, on the other hand, outnumber men by nearly three to one in the 'Clerical' occupations, and by three to two in the 'Sales and Personal Services' occupations.

Industry of employment (see also Table C27)

Between the 1981 and 1986 Censuses there were large increases in the number of persons employed in 'Finance, Property and Business Services' (24.6 per cent), 'Community Services' (20.3 per cent), and 'Recreation, Personal and Other Services' (19.8 per cent). There were decreases in the numbers of persons employed in 'Manufacturing' (12.4 per cent) and 'Agriculture, Forestry, Fishing and Hunting' (4.0 per cent).

Method of travel to work (see also Table C30)

Most Australians drive to work. Between 1976 and 1986 there was a large increase in the number of persons travelling to work by car as driver, and decreases in the numbers travelling to work by most other modes. There has, however, been a noticeable increase in the number of persons travelling to work by bicycle, with the numbers now exceeding those travelling by motor bike. Further details are shown in Table 7.

Hours worked (see also Tables C32, C35)

At the 1986 Census the proportion of employed persons stated as working 35 hours or more per week was 74.7 per cent. The proportion was substantially higher in the industry groups of 'Electricity, Gas and Water' (89.2 per cent), 'Mining' (87.0 per cent), 'Manufacturing' (85.7 per cent) and 'Public Administration and Defence' (84.3 per cent): and substantially lower in 'Recreation, Personal and Other Services' (60.0 per cent) and 'Community Services' (62.4 per cent).

Nature of occupancy of dwelling (see also Tables C36, C38)

Of the total population counted in the 1986 Census, 3.4 per cent of persons were in non-private dwellings (hospitals, homes for the aged, motels, etc.) and 1.0 per cent were in caravans, etc. in parks. Thus 95.6 per cent of persons counted in the census were in private dwellings other than caravans, etc. in parks. The nature of occupancy of these dwellings is shown in Table 8.

Structure of occupied private dwellings (see also Table C37, C43, C44)

Almost 80 per cent of households in occupied private dwellings resided in a separate or semidetached house, with most of the remainder living in medium density housing (row and terrace housing and units in buildings of three storeys or less).

Of the separate or semidetached houses, 17.5 per cent were being rented and 35.5 per cent were being purchased by their occupiers. By contrast, 65.1 per cent of the medium density dwellings were being rented and only 10.8 per cent were being purchased by their occupiers.

Number of vehicles (see also Table C46)

Some 42 per cent of all households stated that they had two or more vehicles, and the same percentage had just one vehicle. The proportion of households stating that they had no vehicle was only 12.6 per cent, compared with 15.7 per cent in 1976.
