INTRODUCTION

ANZSIC 2006 SUPPORT TOOLS

As part of the release of the ANZSIC 2006 Publication, the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) is releasing a range of ANZSIC support tools which will assist users in the transition from ANZSIC 1993 to ANZSIC 2006. The classification support tools provide a guide to the correct classification of statistical units and help make the classification standards more user friendly.

The support tools for ANZSIC 2006 include:

- codes and titles (hierarchical structure);
- class change tables;
- index of primary activities;
- correspondences tables; and
- Web search facility on the ABS Web site.

Codes and titles

This support tool shows the ANZSIC 2006 codes and titles in hierarchical structure. Users can view the classification structure at all hierarchical levels such as division, sub-division, group and class level. This is useful for clients who are only interested in the structure of ANZSIC 2006.

This is included as part of Chapter 6 in the ANZSIC 2006 publication and is available on the ABS Web site in spreadsheet format.

Class change tables

These tables provide information about ANZSIC 1993 activities moved, classes split and actions taken in classifying these activities in the ANZSIC 2006 classification.

The class change tables show how each ANZSIC 1993 class was affected and record where ANZSIC 1993 primary activities are classified in ANZSIC 2006. The class change tables outline the ANZSIC 1993 class, any changes made to it (i.e. split, merged, change of title, removed from the division, etc.) and the resulting ANZSIC 2006 class. The recommended ANZSIC 2006 class includes information about what activities have been moved into or out of the class for ANZSIC 2006.

This support tool is available on the ABS Web site in pdf form.

Index of Primary Activities

The ANZSIC 2006 index of primary activities provides an alphabetical list of primary activities with their corresponding ANZSIC 2006 code. This is a quick user reference for finding the correct ANZSIC 2006 code for a particular activity.

The index is included in Chapter 9 of the ANZSIC 2006 publication and is available on the ABS Web site in spreadsheet format.

Correspondence Tables

There are a number of correspondence tables which will assist users in identifying the relevant corresponding class in another classification. The available correspondence tables for ANZSIC 2006 are:

- ANZSIC 1993 - ANZSIC 2006
- ANZSIC 2006 - ANZSIC 1993
- ISIC Rev. 3.1 - ANZSIC 2006
- ANZSIC 2006 - ISIC Rev. 3.1

Correspondence Tables continued

These tables comprise Chapter 10 of the ANZSIC 2006 publication and are available on the ABS Web site in spreadsheet format. A document explaining how to read a partial correspondence is also included in the spreadsheet.

Search facility on the ABS website

A new feature for ANZSIC 2006 is the availability of a search function on the ABS Web site. Users can now type in keywords, and a list of possible ANZSIC codes with activity descriptions will be displayed. Once the most appropriate code and description is located, clicking the code will show the Class definition including the list of primary activities and the exclusions/references.
