PREFACE

The Australian Bureau of Statistics has developed the Local Government Purpose Classification (LGPC) for use in the collection, analysis and dissemination of local government finance statistics in Australia.

The ABS has produced this classification in line with its commitment to develop and promote the use of standard definitions, classifications and coding procedures to help ensure the comparability of data derived from a range of statistical, administrative and services delivery systems.

There has been extensive consultation with external users during the development of the LGPC to ensure that the classification reflects the functions of local government in Australia and meets the data requirements of users of local government finance statistics.

In developing the LGPC, a principle aim has been to ensure alignment with international standards, namely the Classification of Functions of Government (COFOG) which is included in the System of National Accounts 1993 (SNA93), and the Classification of Environmental Protection Expenditure and Activities (CEPA). This will improve the international comparability of Australian local government finance statistics.

Emphasis has also been placed on aligning the classification with the existing national standard for all levels of government, the General Purpose Classification (GPC). This will ensure continuity of local government financial statistics, as well as comparability between levels of government.

INTRODUCTION

BACKGROUND

In 2000, the ABS conducted a review of local government finance statistics. Findings from this review identified a number of shortcomings in the collection and identification of key local government functions using the existing Government Purpose Classification (GPC). In particular, there were problems identifying transactions relating to environmental protection, recreation and cultural activities. While the GPC provides a national standard for transactions at all levels of government, a lack of detail on key local government functions resulted in inconsistent coding of data and subsequently, inconsistent output.

In response to these findings, the ABS developed the Local Government Purpose Classification (LGPC) as a national standard for the collection, analysis and dissemination of local government finance transactions by purpose.

PURPOSE AND ROLE OF CLASSIFICATION

The purpose of any classification is to arrange specific data into ordered categories or groups useful for statistical analysis. Such categories or groups should be readily understood by users of the data.

The LGPC provides a structure to classify a range of financial transactions, including outlays on final consumption expenditure, intermediate consumption, gross capital formation and capital and current transfers by local government. Data collected according to the LGPC will provide information about the programs and facilities on which local governments are spending their money, and this could feed into further analysis aimed at assessing the socio-economic effects of this expenditure.

The data will also be useful in establishing trends in local government outlays on particular purposes over time. The units of classification are, in principle, individual transactions. This means that each purchase, wage payment, transfer, loan disbursement or other outlay should be assigned an LGPC code according to the function that the transaction serves.

The role of the LGPC, therefore, is to provide a framework which affords local government authorities the ability to classify a range of financial transactions relevant to local government, making reporting easier and providing the consistent data required by the local government administrative bodies in state and territory governments. The classification will also be used to disseminate broad level aggregated data, mainly used by the ABS for the preparation of Government Finance Statistics (GFS) and the National Accounts.

STRUCTURE OF LGPC

The LGPC has a structure comprising categories at three levels, based on the international standard Classification of Functions of Government (COFOG).

The first and most general level of the classification consists of nine broad divisions, each identified by a two-digit code. These broad divisions align with the corresponding divisions of the COFOG, with the exception of COFOG Division 02 Defence which is not relevant to local government. Division 02 is therefore omitted in the LGPC to maintain consistency with the COFOG in the numbering of divisions. At the division level, the main purpose is to provide a broad overall picture of expenditure on a wide range of functions specific to local government.

- 05 - ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION
- 06 - HOUSING AND COMMUNITY AMENITIES
- 07 - HEALTH
- 08 - RECREATION, CULTURE AND RELIGION

- 10 - SOCIAL PROTECTION

The second level of the classification consists of 41 groups, each represented by a 3 digit code.

The third and most detailed level of the classification consists of 86 classes, each represented by a four digit code. No group contains more than nine classes. In 26 instances, purpose groups consist of a single class, which is represented by the group code followed by zero. A nine appearing in the fourth digit position indicates a residual class. There are 11 residual classes. These classes do not constitute homogeneous purpose reporting, but rather diverse purposes which are not sufficiently significant to justify as a separate class. For the purposes of the classification they are grouped together and treated as a separate class to retain the homogeneity of the other items within the group.

The structure of the classification is demonstrated below with respect to the division General Public Services:

01 GENERAL PUBLIC SERVICES

011 Executive and legislative functions, financial and fiscal affairs

This group includes outlays on administration, operation and support of executive and legislative functions, and financial and fiscal affairs.

0111 Executive and legislative functions

This class involves outlays on the administration, operation and support of executive and legislative functions and all elements associated with corporate governance.

CORRESPONDENCES

Correspondences (or concordances) between classifications demonstrate the relationship between the various categories within them, and subsequently, the degree of comparability in data classified to them.

Correspondences at the class level between the LGPC and the COFOG, the LGPC and the CEPA and the LGPC and the GPC are shown in the Correspondences (page 46-58).

COFOG

The COFOG is an international classification of the functions of government, suitable for all levels of government. It was developed in conjunction with the 1993 revision to United Nations System of National Accounts (SNA93) and was revised in 1999. The structure and outline of the LGPC was developed from the COFOG so as to enable international comparability of data collected. Concepts, principles and definitions outlined in the COFOG for Divisions, Groups and Classes are paralleled by those used by the LGPC. However, the LGPC has been developed with respect to Australian local government authorities and characteristics of these are reflected in the classification.

CEPA

Division 5 of the LGPC, Environmental Protection, is closely aligned to the Classification of Environmental Protection Activities and Expenditure (CEPA) to achieve a comprehensive and internationally comparable picture of expenditure by governments on the environment. The CEPA is a generic multipurpose, functional classification for environmental protection used to classify actual outlays (expenditure) and other transactions. Some expenditure items will be transfers, such as subsidies or investment grants, whereas others will be inputs into an environmental protection activity, e.g. wages and salaries.
